Vacations and Tourism Les vacances et le tourisme

Compétence à acquérir : parler de ses vacances

Dans le test du TOEIC, il vous arrivera peut-être d'entendre des conversations portant sur des projets de vacances (vacation) et de lire des publicités pour des circuits touristiques (tour) et des descriptions de lieux de villégiature. Vous serez confrontés à des documents vantant des séjours de nature différente, comme des visites sur des sites (site) antiques (ancient), des croisières (cruise) aux îles, des randonnées (hike) dans des régions très sauvages (wilderness), ou simplement des vacances reposantes (relaxing) à la plage. Ces documents mentionnent des endroits différents, des activités variées, et des prix et des moyens de transport divers.

There are as many ways to take a vacation as there are people in the world. Some people enjoy the thrill of an adventurous vacation such as rock climbing or hiking in the wilderness. Others enjoy learning about history and art as they tour ancient ruins or visit museum exhibits. Other people just want to relax and choose to spend their vacation on a cruise or at a beach resort. A vacation is your time to do exactly as you please. You can relax or seek excitement. You can visit many places or just one. You can have a good time whether you spend a lot of money or just a little. As long as you plan a vacation that fits your interests and budget, you won't regret it.

Vocabulaire

Ancient (adj.) : antique, historique, ancien

People from all over the world visit the ancient pyramids in Egypt.

Cruise (n.) : croisière

We took a cruise in the Caribbean Sea and visited several islands.

v. cruise : faire une croisière

We cruised along the shore looking for a pleasant beach.

Demonstrate (v.) : faire une démonstration (dans ce contexte)

At the history museum a woman demonstrated 19th century cooking techniques.

n. demonstration : démonstration (dans ce contexte)

After viewing the paintings, we saw a demonstration of different art techniques given by the artist.

Exhibit (n.) : exposition, étalage, objets exposés

This month the museum has an exhibit of modern American painting.

v. exhibit : exposer, mettre en exposition, montrer, présenter

Several local artists exhibited their work in the café.

Faux amis

Exhibit en anglais peut avoir le même sens que display ou show. Dans ce cas, il veut dire exposer, montrer, mettre un objet en exposition.

Expose en anglais n'a pas le même sens que exhibit. C'est un faux ami. Il peut avoir le sens de uncover ou allow something to be seen : (s')exposer, (se) donner en spectacle, commettre un outrage à la pudeur. Il peut aussi vouloir dire show the truth about a person or situation, on peut alors le traduire par démasquer ou révéler, découvrir la vérité sur.

Hike (n.) : randonnée, excursion, marche

They enjoyed a long hike around the lake.

n. hiker : marcheur, excursioniste, randonneur

v. hike : marcher, faire des excursions à pied, faire des randonnées

The hikers were tired after climbing the mountain.

We plan to hike through the nature park tomorrow.

Pass up (v.) : manquer, laisser passer une occasion

When you are in Rome, don't pass up the opportunity to visit the Coliseum.

Regard (v.) : considérer

People regard New York as one of the most exciting cities of the world.

⇒ Faux amis

Regard en anglais signifie considérer ou considération en français.

Regarder en français se dit look at en anglais.

Regret (v.) : regretter

We regret not seeing the pyramids when we were in Egypt.

n. regret : regret

adj. regrettable : regrettable

They had many regrets about their visit to the beach.

The rainy weather during the cruise was regrettable.

Relax (v.) : se reposer, se détendre, se décontracter

You can relax by the pool all afternoon.

n. relaxation : repos, détente, relaxation

adj. relaxing : reposant, délassant

In my opinion, relaxation is the main purpose of a vacation.

Our trip to New York was not very relaxing.

Scenery (n.) : paysage, vue, décor

Many visitors are attracted to this area because of the beautiful scenery.

n. scene : scène

adj. scenic : panoramique, touristique, qui offre de belles vues

The geese flying in the evening sky made a beautiful scene.

This is a very scenic part of the country.

Site (n.) : site, lieu touristique

There are many sites of interest to tourists in New York.

⇒ Homonymes

Site et sight s'écrivent différemment, mais ont la même prononciation.

Site signifie endroit, site.

Sight signifie something to see (un monument, un endroit à voir et visiter). Un autre sens de sight est capacité à voir, vue.

Thrill (n.) : sensation forte, frisson, émotion

It was a big thrill to stand at the top of the Empire State Building.

v. thrill : procurer des sensations fortes, des émotions, transporter

adj. thrilling : qui procure des sensations fortes, palpitant

Historical buildings don't thrill me at all.

Les monuments historiques ne me font aucun effet.

Skiing down that mountain was a thrilling experience.

Tour (v.) : visiter, faire du tourisme

While we were in Peru, we toured the ancient ruins of Machu Picchu.

n. tour : excursion, visite, voyage organisé

n. tourism : tourisme

n. tourist : touriste

During our vacation in South America, we took a tour down the Amazon River.

Tourism brings a lot of money to that area of the country.

Thousands of tourists visit Machu Picchu every year.

Vacation (n.) : vacances, congé

I look forward to my vacation every year.

Chaque année, j'attends mes congés avec impatience.

v. vacation : passer ses vacances

They usually vacation at the beach.

Ils passent généralement leurs vacances à la mer.

⇒ Différences US/GB

En anglais américain, les vacances s'appellent vacation. En anglais britannique, on dit holiday. Vacation et holiday sont généralement au singulier.

En anglais américain, on utilise le mot holiday pour parler d'un jour de fête, comme Noël ou le Nouvel An. En anglais britannique, un jour de fête ou de célébration se dit holiday, public holiday ou bank holiday.

Wilderness (n.) : endroit sauvage, désert, région déserte

I spent my vacation camping in the wilderness.

n. wildlife : la faune et la flore

adj. wild : sauvage

I saw a lot of wildlife while I was camping.

I like to learn about wild plants and animals.

► Attention

To look forward to est suivi d'un nom ou d'un gérondif :

I look forward to my vacation every year.

Chaque année, j'attends mes congés avec impatience.

I am really looking forward to going abroad this year.

Cette année, j'ai vraiment hâte de partir à l'étranger.

Grammaire

Les conjonctions de subordination : cause et effet, contraste

Une conjonction de subordination relie deux propositions entre elles : la proposition principale et la proposition subordonnée.

Les conjonctions suivantes expriment un rapport de cause à effet entre les deux propositions : because (parce que), since (puisque, étant donné que), as (comme, puisque).

I took a cruise because I like boats.

prop. princ. + proposition subordonnée

J'ai choisi une croisière parce que j'aime les bateaux.

Since they hiked all day, they were tired in the evening.

proposition subordonnée + proposition principale

Étant donné qu' / comme ils marchaient toute la journée, ils étaient fatigués le soir.

Sarah never takes a vacation as she is always so busy at work.

proposition principale + proposition subordonnée

Comme elle est toujours très occupée à son travail, Sarah ne prend jamais de vacances.

Dans les exemples ci-dessus, la proposition subordonnée indique la cause et la proposition principale indique l'effet ou le résultat, la conséquence. Autrement dit, l'action ou la situation dans la subordonnée explique la raison de l'action ou de la situation exprimée dans la principale.

Il faut faire attention à la différence entre because (parce que) et because of (à cause de)

Because est, comme nous venons de le voir, une conjonction de subordination. Elle introduit donc une proposition (avec un sujet et un verbe).

Because the weather was nice, we spent the day on the beach.

conjonction de subordination + sujet verbe

Because of est une locution prépositionnelle. Prépositions et locutions prépositionnelles sont suivies d'un nom ou d'un gérondif.

Because of the nice weather, we decided to go to the beach.

loc. prépositionnelle + nom

He felt tired because of hiking so long.

locution prépositionnelle + gérondif

Les conjonctions suivantes expriment un rapport de contraste entre les deux propositions : although (bien que), even though (bien que, même si), though (bien que).

Sam spent the day at the art museum even though he isn't interested in art.

proposition principale + proposition subordonnée

Sam a passé la journée au musée / à la pinacothèque bien qu'il ne s'intéresse (ne s'intéressât) pas à l'art / même s'il ne s'intéresse pas à l'art / même si l'art ne l'intéresse pas / bien que l'art ne l'intéresse (intéressât) pas.

Although there are many interesting sites in this town, we only saw a few.

proposition subordonnée + proposition principale

Bien qu'il y ait beaucoup d'endroits intéressants dans cette ville, nous n'en avons vu que quelques-uns.

We went for a long hike though it was a rainy day.

proposition principale + proposition subordonnée

Nous avons fait une longue marche malgré la pluie.

Dans chacun des exemples ci-dessus, l'action exprimée dans la subordonnée contraste avec celle de la principale. La subordonnée exprime un résultat inattendu, qui s'oppose, selon la logique, à la situation décrite dans la principale.

L'ordre des propositions n'a aucune importance. La subordonnée peut suivre la principale ou la précéder. Le sens reste le même.

We went for a long hike though it was a rainy day.

proposition principale + proposition subordonnée

Though it was a rainy day, we went for a long hike.

proposition subordonnée + proposition principale

Ces deux phrases ont la même signification.

Subject: Vacation

Hi Maria,

I hear you are getting ready to plan your vacation. I have some advice for you: Take a cruise! I took a cruise last winter, and it was the best vacation I have ever had. Even though it was expensive, it was worth every penny I spent. On some days we stopped at islands and visited various sites of interest. On other days, we were at sea all day. One day, a group of dolphins swam around the boat. It was so thrilling to see wild sea animals so close. I think that was the best part of the trip. I think a cruise is a great way to spend a vacation because you can see a lot of things and relax at the same time. There are a lot of different cruise companies that have trips in all parts of the world. Look on the Internet and you are sure to find one that you'll like. I know you won't regret it. Let me know what your final plans are.

Robert
